

A Short Bio of Adetomiwa Emmanuel Adesokan

Before joining the University of Nevada, Reno as a Ph.D. student in Economics, I earned an MSc in Economics from the University of Ibadan and a BSc in Economics from the Federal University of Agriculture, Abeokuta. Professionally, I have served as a full-time lecturer at Dominican University and a graduate assistant at the University of Ibadan, where I taught Microeconomics, Macroeconomics, Econometrics, and International Economics. I have also worked in various academic support roles, including as an e-tutor and examination officer.

My research interests are Environmental Economics, Macroeconomics, Cybersecurity, and Artificial Intelligence, with recent publications exploring cybersecurity risks, financial sector resilience, and climate-economy dynamics.

Personal website: <https://adetomiwaadesokan.github.io/cv-/>

Best regards,
Adetomiwa Adesokan
Ph.D. Candidate, Economics
University of Nevada, Reno
+7752196600